and Inclusion.

These and other social issues are never easy to talk about, but absolutely critical to keeping students safe and productive on campus.

For almost 25 years, ACT Out! has been working with Colleges and Universities to start and continue the dialogue. Our unique approach to helping students better face these difficult conflicts and issues has been nationally acclaimed and recognized by The Washington Post, CNN, Teen People Magazine and others as a highly effective means to teach, communicate and entertain.

All shows are original and structured to meet the the specific needs of the organization. Our data shows that 85% of students who have participated in our programs felt it assisted them with thier real-life situations and daily encounters. In contrast, data shows only 5-10% retain information given in other presentations.

Our programs are perfect for student orientations, residential life trainings,
